

Join us for this one-day Forum, FATHERHOOD—Forever Building, Strengthening and Educating Families, to explore, enhance and foster collaboration around services for fathers and families. The Forum provides an opportunity for social service professionals, educators, stakeholders and community members to come together and learn about father services, exchange information and new ideas, and share resources.

Highlights of this Forum include: an interactive video-conferencing workshop with the prisons; round-table discussions informing future family services programming; keynote speaker, Dr Michael Eric Dyson, the renowned University of Pennsylvania researcher; service provider exhibit tables; and other informative workshops.

The Community Track will address social, economic and health issues affecting fathers today and the impact on their health, future and families. Participants will come away with resources and concrete tools and strategies to support fathers as future positive role models.

The Professional Track will offer workshops focusing on men's physical and mental health care needs, as well as information on strengthening current programs through research, outcomes management and strategic collaboration.

Registration, $5 per participant, is first come, first served.

The deadline is May 23.
